Acknowledgements

Employers must keep full and accurate financial records relevant to wages paid or payable by an employer to its employees (including payments to contractors). These records must be sufficient to enable the SRO to assess your liability for payroll tax.

Financial records would usually include details of any contracts, details of any payments (made to employees), salary records (of employees), accounting records, working papers to produce financial reports, and other similar documents.

There is no prescribed format or method for how records should be kept. That is, both physical and electronic records are acceptable.

We recommend that if you store your records electronically you make a backup copy to ensure the evidence is easily accessible if the original becomes inaccessible or unreadable – for example, where a hard drive is corrupted.

The records must be in English or easily convertible into English. If you make paper or electronic copies they must be a true and clear reproduction of the original.

The financial records must be kept for not less than 5 years after whichever of the following is the later:

- (a) the date the record was made or obtained;
- (b) the date of completion of the transaction or act to which the record relates.

By submitting this return you acknowledge that:

- All of the information is true and correct to the best of your knowledge;
- Penalties may apply for submitting false or misleading information; and
- An audit may be undertaken following the submission of your payroll tax return.

I understand and agree to the above acknowledgements.
